OGDEN IS OUT OF THE CELLAR

Ogden climbed out of the cellar and Helena in it Sunday afternoon by both games in the double-header. Stone pitched for the locals and the Helena men almost hit throughout the afternoon. In the game only two Helena men got out base, and in the next game, was started after a heavy rain, called at the end of the seventh to permit the locals to catch a for home.

Ogden boys won five out of the games played at Helena last Sunday, and they succeeded in climbing out of the cellar, after having spent several weeks there. Pitcher Stone deserves credit for pitching wonderful ball Sunday. He is "Mack's" hot weather twirler, and great things can be expected from him during the remainder of the summer. The score Sunday:

RAIN STOPS GAME.
A brilliant pitched battle between Lamlock and Hildebrand was spalled at Missoula, Sunday afternoon, by a deluge of rain which began to fall at the end of the fifth inning. Neither team at scored, and the game had to be called by Umpire Hurlbut.

HONOR EVEN AT BUTTE.
Butte and Salt Lake divided up the honors in a double-header at Butte Sunday afternoon. Salt Lake taking the first game by a 12 to 1 score and the Butte men taking the next battle with a 5 to 5 score. The first battle was one-sided, and Salt Lake soaked the ball at will, but Butte finished fast in the last game. Timmerman, who replaced Dressen, threw wild to first with a man on third, and the error gave the Montana men the second game.

WON SATURDAY'S GAME.
Ogden won a fast game from Helena Saturday afternoon, the score being 3 to 0. The game was a pitched battle between Bryan and Jacobs.

BUNCHED THE HITS.
Salt Lake won a 15 to 5 game from Butte Saturday afternoon by bunching the hits when the chance came. Butte was in poor condition and the game was uninteresting.

ORPHEUM TEAM DEFEATS ELKS

A baseball team representing the Elks was defeated by the Orpheum theater team at Glenwood park, Sunday afternoon, the score being 19 to 9.

The game was better than the result proves, and there was much fine fielding on both sides.

Brooks of the Elks team was the star man at bat. He scored five runs. Shristy got five hits of five times at bat, including a home run, a three-bagger and a two-bagger. The score:

$5,000,000 SPENT TO SEE BIG BOUT

How many sportsmen realize how much money is spent annually by them for the privilege of witnessing contests of the many art of self-defense? Since James J. Corbett and John L. Sullivan battled at New Orleans, nearly twenty years ago for the championship of America, the American fight fans have expended over $5,000,000 just to see championship bouts alone; besides the enormous sums they have kicked in for smaller events. The latter-day champions have come to compare their profession with that of a millionaire banker or mining man, and there are several champions who have pulled down in purses and side bets in a single day more than one out of 1,000 average men can accumulate in a lifetime.

Just in New York alone since the Fraxley bill permitting ten-round boxing contests went into effect, a little over a year ago, the state has benefited to the extent of $35,000 from a dividend of 5 per cent of the gross receipts.

The modern-day boxer, whether he be a champion or not, so long as he has a national reputation, does the dictating in regard to how much he shall receive for his services. It is a common occurrence for a champion, or near champion, to demand anywhere from $15,000 to $20,000 for boxing ten rounds in a well heated, lighted and protected pavilion, whereas boxers of older days used to dodge the police and battle in barns and out in the open, through drizzling rains and the like.

Those were the days that Jack McAuliffe, Jack Dempsey, Charlie Mitchell and many others used to pick their hands and fight with bare knuckles, and they were pretty lucky to receive as much as $500. That, too, when it was prize fighting where cleverness was not known and the man who could stand the most beating and had the hardest punch generally emerged from the fray the victor.

Today, however, it is different, there is no such thing as a prize fight. There are safely padded mitts provided for the boxers. All brutality has been removed. The game has been modernized until it has become a scientific boxing exhibition between perfectly trained athletes for a certain number of rounds, each round of three minutes' duration.

There were practically no referees in those days—generally some well known sportsman at the ringside was selected to officiate; today, a referee, where a boxing commission holds forth, must be a competent and licensed official whose duty it is to prevent any brutality whatever. This is quite a difference from the olden times.

With the uplifting of the boxing game, the boxers have commercialized their services; they are aware of the fact that the public likes boxing—hence, the big purse.

As an illustration of this fact, one has only to glance over the following: The Jeffries-Johnson contest, held with a gate of $271,000—of this amount the purse was $101,000. Johnson received for the winning end $60,000, an additional bonus of $10,000, and $50,000 for moving picture privileges, making a grand total of $120,000. Just think of what an enormous pile of money this is, more than any other man ever accomplished in such a short time before.

Other big receipts are: The Nelson-Gans contest at Goldfield, Nev., $69,715; Jeffries-Sharkey, New York, $67,000; Jeffries-Fitzsimmons, New York, $63,000; Jeffries-Corbett, Frisco, $63,340 and Corbett-McCoy, New York, $53,000. Just imagine these tremendous crowds, and besides this, there were numerous others where the gate equalled better than $40,000.

The coming contest between Flynn and Johnson will likely draw in the neighborhood of $150,000 and yet the people ask: "Does it pay to be a boxer?"

To this question I should answer that there is a hard row of stumps ahead of every boy who starts out in the boxing game, but once they reach the top, it is a very profitable business. If you don't believe it, just refer to Batting Nelson's fortune of $300,000, derived from twelve years' ring experience.

M'CARTHY IS GREAT

SECOND BASEMAN
Pittsburg, July 1.—Many local baseball experts are of the opinion that Jimmy McCarthy of the Pirates is the best second baseman in the National league. This will not meet with favorable comment from critics in St. Louis, New York or Chicago, where the middle station is looked after by stars of the first water—men who have helped make the game's history. McCarthy has been playing a brilliant game since the season opened. Besides putting up a fine exhibition of fielding at the middle station, he is hitting the ball hard and running bases well. McCarthy was utility infielder on the team last year. At the opening of the current season he was placed at second when "Dots" Miller was shifted to first base.

RACE INTERESTING.
The American league race is growing a lot more interesting. The White Sox have slipped out of it and left Boston out in front with a clear lead. The fact that the Sox slumped at home, with everything in their favor, bodes ill for Chicago, and an analysis of the scores makes it look worse. The Sox, so far as the scores indicate, are playing just a trifle worse ball than they were when they were winning persistently and yet they are losing steadily. Their pitchers are going almost as well, but they are not hitting. It all seems to indicate that the other teams are settling to their gait and are playing more ball and that the wonderful showing of the Sox was not true form, but a flash of speed and courage.

M'GRAW HAS GAINED WEIGHT.
Johnnie McGraw is twice as heavy as he was when he played third base for the champion Baltimore in 1894. In those days the Giants' leader was a typical kid—short, wiry and as scrappy as a boxer. He did not dream then that some day he would be drawing a princely salary as the manager of a champion team. McGraw is both fat and healthy, but he can still play the scrappy game, and if it were not for a weak knee would be able to replace any of his stars outside of the battery.

TIGERS COUNTED OUT.
Detroit seems entirely eliminated as a pennant possibility and the team is not playing the ball it is capable of playing, even with the broken pitching staff, and Cleveland, shaken up and changed, does not appear to respond to the spur. That team seems doomed to be a repetition of past years. It has every element of a There is something lacking in winning team and still will not win.

SPORTS THINK WELL OF LUTHER M'CARTY
Luther McCarthy, the youthful giant who surprised the world by tumbling Carl Morris to the ring floor for the count, is not the lucky child of a fortunate punch, as some of the sport writers have intimated. Rather he is the embodiment of all that goes to make the ring champion, the possessor of speed, hitting ability, an aptitude for learning the finer points of the fistie sport and the gamest who ever laced on a glove. His victory over Morris was the climax of months of training with the one object in view, that of defeating the big engineer. At no time had he any doubt of the result of the contest with Morris.

CALIFORNIAN WINS BIENNIAL YACHT RACE
Honolulu, July 1.—The Yacht Lurline, Captain Harris of the San Diego, Cal., Yacht club, dropped anchor in Honolulu harbor at 9:44 a. m., yesterday, winning the fourth biennial yacht race from Los Angeles harbor to Honolulu. The distance is 2,013 miles. The yachting course is about 2,600 miles.

The Lurline's time, unofficially, was thirteen days, twenty-three hours, sixteen minutes.

At 10 o'clock last night none of her competitors were in sight. The other boats were the Seafarer, Captain Norris, the Hawaii, Captain Stroud, Honolulu, eight hours, twenty-three minutes, forty-five seconds time allowance, and the Matooah, Captain Ashe, Victoria, B. C., ten hours, thirty-eight minutes, forty-five seconds. The Lurline had seven minutes, forty-nine seconds time allowance. She lost her topmast two days out.

Until the Lurline was sighted off Diamond Head, not a word had been heard from the four yachts since they vanished over the horizon outside Los Angeles harbor two weeks ago yesterday. At that time Captain Norris, with the Seafarer, was in the lead. The best time for the distance is twelve days.
